S + P = A is a group of artists whose work references structures, systematic organizing methods as an important part of their creative practice. Some artworks clearly evidence a systematic development by creating geometric patterns mathematical associations and repetition. In other artworks the systematic process is less conspicuous where their process is more about exploration of materials, a purposeful search for systems and structure or that systems are embedded deep within their process. All of these artists demonstrate how using consciously systematic methods in union with the alchemy of intuition, a sense of wonder and playful investigation produce excitingly beautiful, surprising and sometimes chaotically refreshing results.

S + P = A is on display at 686 E. Union St. behind Vroman's Bookstore, through December 3rd.

PMCA new exhibition In the Land of Sunshine: Imaging the California Coast Culture assembles approximately 90 paintings inspired by the stunning vistas, lifestyles, and industries existing along the 840 miles of California coastline.

In the exhibition Lloyd Hamrol/Joan Perlman: "a sky in the palm of a hand,"

Lloyd Hamrol's large-scale felt sculptures and Joan Perlman's abstract paintings and prints provide a platform to consider the shared ideas and sharp distinctions between two artists' investigations of materials, process, impermanence, and landscape.
